

Figure 1 Map showing the locations of the short period Jordan National Seismic Network (triangles) and the broadband stations of the region (stars), including the two stations (HITJ, RUWJ) operated jointly by the Natural Resources Authority of Jordan, the USGS and Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory (University of California). Six large phosphate mines also are shown; explosions at these mines frequently are observed by the stations of the network